The St. Regis Venice

The Italianate Garden

The St. Regis Venice

Supremely located beside the Grand Canal opposite iconic landmarks Punta della Dogana and Santa Maria della Salute Basilica, The St. Regis Venice has stood in various guises in this privileged position for over a century and a half, welcoming a host of illustrious guests.

Home to merchants, royalty, artists and explorers, the hotel is steeped in timeless legend and impeccable character, and has been defined by the city's artistic and cultural legacy. Made up of a unique collection of five 18th and 19th century palazzi, The St. Regis Venice features 130 guestrooms and 39 suites, many of which boast private terraces or Juliet balconies for sweeping views of Venice's iconic landmarks.

A jewel in the city, the hotel's spacious secluded garden sets the hotel apart, making it a lifestyle destination where guests and locals alike can enjoy remarkable views of the Grand Canal, and the disruptively delicious gastronomical experiences of Gio's Restaurant, The St. Regis Bar, and Arts Bar.

The SPA Suites at The St. Regis Venice advocate an immersive enriching journey, offering moments of relaxed pleasure and sensory revitalization.

Avantgarde in outlook and evolutionary in design, The St. Regis Venice merges its historic provenance as the best address in the city, with striking, modern interiors and an allure cultivated by discerning luminaries.

The Presidential Suite

The Presidential Suite

True artist's residences, the Presidential and Monet Suites are infused with artistic spirit. Inspired by the watercolours of French Impressionist painter Claude Monet, who painted from this same location in 1908 when he was a former guest of The St. Regis Venice – at the time the Grand Hotel Britannia – the interior design of the suites evidences the soft, warm Venetian light that has drawn artists to Venice over the centuries.

Focal points of the living spaces alongside unrivaled outlooks are a series of bespoke contemporary artworks entitled “Hommage à Monet” commissioned to artist in residence, French painter Olivier Masmonteil, which celebrate the eternity of luminescence so unique to Venice.

Presidential Suite

The grandest of all suites, the two-bedroom Presidential Suite occupies the entire waterfront-facing space on the second noble floor of the hotel's palace, making it undeniably the finest address in the hotel. Enchanting is the play of light that accompanies the rise and setting of the day.

Defined by expansive night and day ambiances, soaring ceilings and bespoke design furnishings by London based Sagrada, the Presidential Suite is the ultimate in contemporary Venetian luxury. Its living spaces lead out to Juliette balconies that present uninterrupted views of the entrance to Venice's Grand Canal, with perspectives that extend 180° from the Bacino San Marco to San Giorgio Maggiore Island, across to Punta della Dogana and the beautiful Santa Maria della Salute Basilica, and beyond again to the palatial residences of notable architectural beauty that line the opposite bank of the waterway.

Focal points in the interconnecting living rooms are two contemporary canvases entitled "Hommage à Monet" commissioned to artist in residence, French painter Olivier Masmonteil. Venetian mirror inserts amplify their jewel colours alongside the light and beauty that filters in from outside.

Bronze and Alabaster plaster sculpture by Massimiliano Pelletti, collaborative glass art by Robin Greene and Berengo Studios, art by Aurore de la Morinerie, Tony Blackmore, and James Thomas, along with backlit shelving dotted with objets d'art, Murano glass accessories and literary works lend sophisticated eclecticism to this unique and superb artist's residence.

Monet Suites

Encapsulating true modern Venetian residences designed by London based Sagrada for connoisseurs of fine art, the Monet Suites pay homage to the great vanguard of Impressionism, French painter Claude Monet. Each is unique in design, with colour palettes inspired by the artist's Venetian masterpieces, and by the soft, warm Venetian light.

Elegant and residential, yet charged with artistic spirit, the Monet suites occupy Grand Canal front row positions in the hotel's Tiepolo palace. A step-out Juliette balcony overlooks Venice's iconic waterway, while slices of Venetian mirroring amplify the view and beauty outside.

Accompanying artist in residence Olivier Masmonteil commissioned canvases from the series "Hommage à Monet" are bronze and Alabaster plaster sculptures by Massimiliano Pelletti, collaborative glass pieces by Luigi Benzoni and by Robin Greene with Berengo Studios, and artworks by James Thomas and Tony Blackmore. Rubelli design fabrics and a backlit bookcase contribute to the residential atmosphere showcasing modern objets d'art from Murano, and a curated selection of art and cultural volumes and novels.

The allure of the city's hidden gardens is both a worthy complement to the views, as well as a source of inspiration for the interiors of The St. Regis Venice's Garden Retreats. Indulge at leisure on outdoor extensions immersed in some of the finest panoramas of Venice.

The Penthouse Suite

Penthouse Suite

The epitome of luxury the Penthouse Suite is undeniably the largest accommodation in the hotel. A hideaway retreat at one with the Venetian skyline, the Penthouse Suite immerses its guests in an engaging panorama of cupolas, bell towers, altans and terracotta tiling just minutes from the city's contemporary art scene, designer boutiques, and city museums.

Unique to the Penthouse Suite is its wraparound furnished garden terrace, which showcases extraordinary outlooks from three separate viewpoints over Venice's city-, canal- and lagoon-scapes. Enjoy coveted perspectives of St. Mark's Bell Tower, the Grand Canal, the iconic landmarks of Punta della Dogana and Santa Maria della Salute Basilica, San Giorgio Maggiore island, Venice's northern and southern lagoon and, on clear days, the Dolomite Alps in the Veneto Region. Amplifying the guest experience is the play of warm Venetian light that filters through the suite's multiple French window doors and windows, and dapples delightfully through the suite's spaces.

Accessed by its own private elevator, the Penthouse Suite is a superbly comfortable residence for multi-generational family holidays, and getaways with friends.

St. Regis Suites

With their graciously proportioned living rooms, St. Regis Suites are eclectic in style, layout and design.

Twilight or dusk tones allude to the hues that tinge the city as evening transcends, complemented by modern design details inspired after the works of Venetian architect Carlo Scarpa, Venetian gondola and boating tradition, and the motifs decorating Palazzo Ducale, Piazza San Marco and San Giorgio Maggiore. Cultivating the vanguard's desire for the new is a carefully curated selection of art by Olivier Masmonteil and Maria Kreyn, objets d'art from Murano, and Venice and art-themed coffee-table books.

East-facing windows open to views over the traditional terracotta city rooftops, or over the adjacent Palazzo Treves and the charming Corte Barozzi which provides access to the hotel. A coveted Juliette balcony in one suite leads the visitor outdoors, creating moments to engage with the residential charm of the local neighbourhood.
